Senator Teller on the Monetary Conference.

The Committee on Privileges and Elections

Considering the Cases of the Northwestern Senators.

The Report of Strained Relations Between the President and the Senate Denied.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—[Associated Press.]—Senator Teller, who has already given notice of his intention to take steps to cause the international monetary conference to reconvene at Brussels, today was asked for an opinion respecting the declaration of the chancellor of the exchequer yesterday that the British delegates would be instructed to oppose the bi-metallic scheme presented at the conference. Teller said the declaration was made that Great Britain would absolutely oppose the free coinage of silver on terms of equality with gold. That is what she has always done and nobody expected her to do anything more at this time, but there is nothing in this position irreconcilable with the statement that the object of the conference is merely to extend the use of silver as a money metal; in fact the evidence shows that Great Britain really desired to do something in that direction. Her financiers realize the necessity for a palliative measure; something to prevent the further depreciation of silver, which if continued must result in the total destruction of the present money system. If that occurred free silver would be as good as dead; but nobody wished to adopt such a heroic measure to achieve the desired result. He had no doubt that England would be willing to support a reasonable proposition that will be more practicable than the Bismarck scheme.

The Northwestern Senators.

The committee on privileges and elections held a session this morning lasting two hours and a half. The only cases discussed, and these too in an informal manner, were those of Thomas E. Manton and Beckwith, appointed by the governors of Montana and Wyoming, respectively. The question before the committee was whether it being the beginning of a full term and the legislature having refused to elect, certificates of the governors were valid, and whether the governors were authorized to appoint. The conditions in the case of Allen, of Washington, whose credentials have not yet arrived, are somewhat different, but the result appears to be the same in all three cases, and it probably will be considered from the same basis. The committee is divided on the question, and the division is not drawn according to party ideas. There will probably be a majority and a minority report, and this, it is thought, will be the cause for a protracted debate, with the end in view of finally establishing a precedent that shall be a law in the senate. The committee will meet again on Monday afternoon, and two senators-elect will be permitted to come before the committee and make such statements as they may see fit.

Awaiting Blount's Return.

Messrs. Castle and Thurston, of the Hawaiian commission, and Mr. Paul Newman, attorney for Queen Liliuokalani, left Washington tonight. Mr. Castle is enroute home, intending to sail from San Francisco for Honolulu on the 21st. The others will return to Washington and await the outcome of Blount's visit to the Hawaiian islands.

An Appointment.

Attorney-General Olney today appointed Frank Strong, of Arkansas, general agent of the department of justice, vice S. S. Foster, resigned.

Pleasant Relations Still Exist.

A story is published to the effect that President Cleveland has inaugurated a big fight against the senate because of his displeasure on account of the manner in which the committee of that body were organized. The story is incorrect. Mr. Cleveland might have been better pleased if the senate committees had been organized differently, but he did not, and does not intend to manifest any displeasure or disappointment he may feel. The attitude of several senators who called at the white house has been called at the published story and they unanimously denied any knowledge of strained relations between them and the president.

Birthdays at the White House.

The cabinet was in session for about an hour and a half today. Several members stayed behind for some time longer, discussing the affairs of their departments with the president. All members remained today, the 69th anniversary of the birth of the secretary of state, and did not fail to congratulate Mr. Gresham. Secretary of state Lamont suggested that it would be the president's turn tomorrow to receive congratulations, as he will celebrate his 53rd birthday.

Lucky Mr. Wise.

It is stated on good authority that the president has selected John O. Wise as collector of the port of San Francisco, and that his nomination will go to the senate next week.

Distinguished Convalescents.

LONDON, March 18.—Lord Salisbury is better in health today. Gladstone had so much recovered today that he drove to the House of Commons where he was received with cheers.

DOWN THE COLORADO.

Described by Tourists as a Veritable El Dorado.

YUMA, ARIZ., March 18.—[Special.]—Wm. Hutt and Chas. Battye, two well known miners and prospectors just returned from a trip down the Colorado river, to Montague island, the old ship yards at Port Isabel, on the Sonora side of the gulf, and San Felipe on the Lower California side. They found an abundance of game, immense numbers of wild geese, ducks, sand hill cranes, snipes, curlew and other water birds, fish in great abundance, and fed on the fat of the land. They killed a deer at the mouth of the Hardie that weighed 200 pounds, the horns of which they brought back as trophies.

At San Felipe they found oysters, smelt, sardines and other fish in great quantities. They did not visit the clam banks on the east shore, nor the shell banks below San Felipe. During the summer months at the port of San Felipe there are an abundance of turtles some of which have been caught that weighed 750 pounds, and millions of soft shell crabs upon which the black sea bass feed. On the latter fish there are great numbers. There is probably no better fishing ground on the Pacific coast than that near the mouth of the Colorado. Messrs. Hutt and Battye have returned to their homes at the Needles, Cal. They expect to return in a few months and have another turn at fishing.

RICHER THAN GOLD.

The Valuable Discovery Made by Prospectors.

A Million and a Half Acres of Rich Mesa Land with Plenty of Living Water.

YUMA, ARIZ., March 18.—[Special.]—Dan O. Toole, Ben Sneed and party have returned from a long search for the famous lost Peg Leg gold mine, supposed to exist on the great desert near Salton lake. They found no gold, nor do they think that any exists east of the Casino and San Jacinto mountains, but they say that they did find the richest, prettiest and best large area of valley and low mesa lands that there is on the Pacific coast, with plenty of good water and feed for their animals. In no place did they find it more than twenty miles from one good watering place to another. They saw three fine soda-water springs, which had been discovered by that old veteran prospector, H. D. Converse. The water, they say, is equal to the famous soda springs at Napa, Cal. During their long trip, they traveled over an area of excellent lands that they estimate at 1,500,000 acres, which belong to the United States government and are subject to location. Where they expected to find only sand hills, which they found existed only in the minds of "hobo" editors and "penny-aliners," they found the richest and best of lands, every foot of which can be irrigated with the water that can be made to flow down New and Center rivers.

POWER OF THE PRESS.

The Trans-Mississippi Congress Recognizes It.

No Other Class of Business That Has Done so Much to Build and Develop the West.

SANTA FE, N. M., March 18.—[Associated Press.]—At a meeting of the executive committee of the trans-Mississippi congress held here today, Mr. Wainstock, of Sacramento, Cal., was elected a member of the committee. Among other business transacted, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this committee recognizes with sincere appreciation the assistance of the press given the trans-Mississippi country, and records with pleasure upon the minutes of its proceedings this testimonial to the public spirit and enterprise of its members, whose efforts in the advancement and industrial progress of the west is without parallel in any other one class of business.

ON THE WAR PATH.

Pious People of New Jersey after the Race Track.

TRENTON, N. J., March 18.—[Associated Press.]—Chief Justice Bradley has granted writs removing to the supreme court the laws recently passed providing for licensing race tracks in the state and permitting book making and pool selling. Licenses granted under these acts to Monmouth park, Gottenburg and Gloucester have been suspended pending a decision as to the constitutionality of the laws. Applications for the writs were made in behalf of the Citizens' League of New Jersey. The cases will probably be heard at the next term of the supreme court.

KNIFED!

The Condition of Several Candidates Yesterday.

The Situation in Washington Becomes Interesting.

Who Will Be Governor Still the Question.

The Zulick Combine in Danger of Breaking.

L. C. DINES WITH HOKE!

White and Stanford Support Farish.

A New Candidate Enters the Field.

Unexpected Strength of Dr. Hughes.

Mark Smith Endorses Foster Dennis.

A Neck and Neck Race that will Disappoint Some and Leave Many Sores to be Healed.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—[Special.]—Arizona demonstrated one thing today and that is that she is a rustler—wild woolly if you please—but still a rustler. On the principle that the early bird catches the worm, the Arizona delegation was seated on the white house steps bright and early this morning waiting for business to begin, and the first cards sent to the president bore the names of "C. Meyer Zulick" and "John O. Danbar." The president sent word that he was engaged and could not see them today, but that he would confer with them before making the Arizona appointments. The Arizona gentlemen were of course disappointed as they expected to secure the appointment of Foster Dennis as governor today and drive a nail in the political coffin of Ben Parker for marshal; but they were obliged to make the best of it and later in the day in company with Mark Smith were seen at a well known Washington cafe discussing their sorrow in that manner for which Marcus is peculiarly noted.

A new Richmond has appeared in the field in the person of J. D. Burgess who hails from Prescott and has a pocket full of petitions setting forth his qualifications for governor, but his candidacy is not seriously regarded—not even as a dark horse. Eight years ago through the influence of the late Senator Barbour of Virginia, he was sent to Prescott as register of the land office, but has no political pull in Washington now. With his long array of petitions he reminds Washington people more of a candidate for a fourth-class postoffice than for the honorable and high position of governor.

The war continues between Zulick and Farish and the ex-governor has lost no time in sticking the knife to the hilt between the ribs of Farish, who, it is said, was one of the warmest supporters of the Zulick administration when that gentleman was governor of Arizona; but politics make strange bed-fellows, and Farish now isn't in the Zulick combine. But nevertheless he appears to be strictly in it for governor, and knowing one predict that he will yet capture the plum.

Apologies of the opposition of Zulick to Farish, the following story was told to your correspondent today, and its truth is vouched for by a well-known public man of the strictest integrity: Soon after the November landslide a meeting was held in Tucson at which Zulick, Parker and Farish were present. At this meeting the spoils formed the principal topic for discussion and the governorship was tendered to Zulick, but he declined it because he wished to become a candidate for United States senator. It was then arranged that Farish should be governor, Parker marshal and Zulick senator, and the three, over several bottles of pommy sec, sealed the compact. At this time early statehood seemed probable, and for a while all went merry as a marriage bell; but when it became evident that statehood was in the remote future Zulick bucked like a bronco, broke the solemn compact and himself became a candidate for governor. This riled Farish's temper and he denounced the wily ex-governor as a traitor and said many other uncomplimentary things of him. The war then broke out and has been on ever since. The decree that no former officeholder under Cleveland would be eligible for re-appointment having been promulgated, Zulick at once began looking for a substitute for himself to beat Farish; but in order to stand in with L. C. Hughes he gave the friends of that gentleman to understand that he was for him. He also gave numerous other people to believe the same thing and was delegated by candidates to proceed to this city and pull the wires for them. This is the story current today and it will reach the ears of both the president and secretary of the interior not later than Monday night, and will greatly lessen the influence of the accredited envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the Democratic party of Arizona. While Mark Smith, Zulick and Danbar were engaged in outlining a policy to pursue at the cafe already referred to, and incidentally testing Mark's favorite beverage, a scene occurred at the Arlington that would have frozen the blood in the veins of this trio. Secretary Hoke Smith, L. C. Hughes, and a half dozen prominent southern gentlemen who were delegates in the Chicago convention were dining together at that famous hostelry and discussing the incidents which led to the nomination of Cleveland on the first ballot, and in which the Arizona delegation played no important part. Of course this was a social gathering and nothing of a political nature personal to any of the party was mentioned. But, as it showed which way the wind blows, and they seemed tonight to be blowing in the direction of the distinguished Tucson editor.

However, the fact cannot be overlooked that H. A. Hughes is a formidable candidate. Senator Mills of Texas is making a personal fight for him, and is warmly aided by other senators, among them a brother-in-law of Secretary Smith. The appointment of H. A. Hughes would be as much gall and worm-wood to the Zulick-Danbar faction as that of Farish, and they will resist it to the bitter end.

Senator White of California, who has been one of Farish's main supporters now has the aid of Senator Stanford, and it will be remembered that Cleveland recently gave Stanford to understand that his endorsements would have great weight. The accession of Stanford to the Farish ranks is, therefore, significant.

The candidacy of Dennis rests principally upon the support of Mark Smith, Zulick and Danbar, who profess to believe that L. C. Hughes has no show and that they are free to support Dennis. Besides, at the request of Zulick most of the members of the legislature have signed a telegram which was received today asking for the appointment of Dennis. The endorsement of Dennis by the delegate from the territory will undoubtedly have great weight, but whether it will secure the prize remains to be seen. Dennis is said to be a solid man, but the fervency with which he is being supported by a faction may injure him.

The appointment of Dennis is a slap at the Barnes and Parker wing, and the appointment of Farish or L. C. Hughes will be vigorously opposed by Zulick and Mark Smith. H. A. Hughes appears, therefore, to be the only candidate not representing a faction. It is thought now that the appointment will be made not later than Wednesday, when the other Arizona places will also be immediately considered.

CAPTURES A RUNAWAY WIFE.

Charley White, of Vincennes, Finds Her in Bad Company.

MUNCIE, Ind., March 18.—[Associated Press.]—Charley White, a Vincennes liverman, found his pretty runaway wife in a compromising place in Muncie today. Mrs. White was jealous and said Charley had mistreated her, notwithstanding the fact that they have been married less than a year. She knew a woman in Muncie who was once her schoolmate and she was visiting her, but she says she did not know her friend was an inmate of a disreputable house. With the assistance of two policemen Mr. White found where his wife was staying. Mrs. White discovered her husband first and ran to the barn and crawled under the hay. Tonight the couple left for Indianapolis. The woman says she will not return to Vincennes.
